The MBA Programme in Management: For all those aiming at a managerial role

The MBA programme is aimed at all university graduates in work, who have initial decision-making powers and who are soon to take on further managerial responsibilities. Candidates can come from different fields of specialization:

Economists who wish to prepare themselves explicitly for a management role Academics from other fields who find themselves being increasingly confronted with management tasks (e.g. engineers, scientists, humanities academics, legal academics, members of the medical profession, etc.)

The course imparts specialist know-how as well as leadership and social skills. The curriculum is based on two pillars:

Professional and methodical competence:

This pillar's modules will allow you to deepen your understanding of markets and customers as well as to learn how to recognize potential for growth, develop strategies and position companies. You will learn how to organize people and processes and how resources can be precisely implemented and controlled.

Leadership and social skills:

Having well-founded management skills is not enough to lead a business or part of one, so instruction is given in leadership and social skills. The main emphasis is on team, innovation and change management as well as on intercultural aspects.

We offer you an attractive MBA programme – with special advantages

At the Niederrhein University you can obtain the internationally recognized Master of Business Administration (MBA) in four semesters while remaining in full-time employment.

This qualification together with the acquired expertise and leadership skills will significantly improve your professional status. Not only does the MBA improve your career prospects - you also profit from the programme's interdisciplinary learning environment. Moreover, your personal network will be expanded by the many and various contacts to executives in business, professors and fellow students.

Built on 25 years of experience in part-time degree courses, the MBA at the Niederrhein University offers clear advantages:

Individual: The courses are run with small groups, which allow a high degree of interactivity as well as personal support and guidance. As the levels of previous knowledge can vary, we offer specific preparatory courses in business studies.

Top-class: Our lecturers are experienced practitioners in responsible positions and professors with practical business experience.

Efficient: We guarantee our range of courses. You can be sure that the courses on offer also take place. The time framework of two years is manageable.

* The degree course is accredited by the FIBAA in Bonn.
